

CHILDHOOD CANCER

Although Nationally Childhood Cancer Awareness has come and gone and Lions Childhood Cancer isn't until February, it's important to remember that the disease continues, and there are children in Pediatric Cancer Centers receiving treatment.

So, while you are toasty warm this cold, wintery season, consider making or buying new hats, caps, head scarves and blankets to donate to a childhood cancer center. Or while you are home with your family during the holiday season, think about those families who are spending it in the hospital. If possible, have your club write greeting cards full of well-wishes and encouragement to be shared with patients and their families at a local cancer center.

Thanks to the many Lions clubs for your donations to the Sacred Heart Childhood Cancer Center. I know there are other clubs who have used Amazon to order gifts, and there are still others who are continuing to gather needed items for the Sacred Heart Cancer Center, as well as other cancer centers utilized by community members in our district. Your gifts are very much appreciated.
