She believed she could, so she did. Story #1

My name is Blandina Lugendo, a Marine Biologist by profession and Lecturer at the University of Dar es Salaam. I am also a co-founder and the First Chairperson of Tumaini la Maisha (TLM) Tanzania; an NGO dedicated to supporting children with cancers and their families in Tanzania.

The two commitments seem so different, however, to me the common denominator is my urge to give, help and support as much as I can. I really find joy and satisfaction in doing this. As a lecturer I teach, but I always go that extra mile to talk and listen to my students outside classes. This gives me opportunities to understand them better and assist them whenever necessary. My involvement with TLM is centered at helping – though in a completely different dimension.

My greatest challenge is identifying someone in need but not being able to help. Another challenge is my juggling between being a mother and a woman with career.

The best representation of women's day is the realization that women do have the ability to do whatever they put their mind on to. So this day should be taken as an opportunity for outstanding women to showcase their achievements in order to encourage other women and girls to pursue careers besides their family related responsibilities. It is also a special day to celebrate the achievements of other women who have excelled. It is the only day in which the world turns their attention to women, listening to what they say and knowing who they are, what they have achieved and what they are capable of doing. We should therefore use it as an opportunity to raise our voices against violence and abuse directed to women, be it physical, mental or emotional. The societies and government at large should realize the abilities of women and equally allow them to realize their full potentials.

My role model are my parents who inspired me with the spirit of goodhearted-ness, humility, endurance and hard work.

Life lesson - regardless of the circumstances you are in, be who you are. Always try to do what truly defines you, or else you will remain feeling guilty. Together with other well-wishers I co-founded TLM while being in a very difficult situation. However, I participated because I believed that the NGO will help those in need, and I am glad it is doing that and more. Therefore, I urge other people to not use difficult situations as excuses for not taking appropriate action in favour of those in need.

She believed she could, so she did. Story #2

Tania Hamilton

Co-founder of Nabaki Afrika - 1994 and Nipe Fagio 2013.

1. What defines me best:

Phew – I wonder if my definition would match how others would define me ☐! We all have those voices in our heads that try to sabotage us and make us feel less clever, funny, beautiful, valuable ...

So, on reflection, after struggling deeply with lack of confidence and extreme shyness in my youth, I have been molded and defined over time to be:

self-determined - bordering on compulsive obsessive ;) ; courageous (to jump into the unknown); serial student of holistic self improvement (mind, body and soul) and the inter-connectivity of all life (animal, plant, human); passionate environmentalist; compassionate humanist, constantly evolving.

2. What challenges me most:

My idealism and finding balance. All my life I've been a workaholic / project-aholic – all or nothing – often at the expense of personal health and relationships. I am now more determined than ever to practice balance. A friend once told me: “We walk a tightrope and have to find balance to get to the other side” – I love this!

3. What is the best representation of Women's Day:

I would choose an animal totem for the day – and it would be a chameleon! Women constantly change their colours (morph roles, multi-task); are camouflaged (often unseen, in the background, either self-hidden or just not 'seen' by others); our progress has mostly been slow through history, often persecuted and limited; but we are all seeing (revolutionary eyes) and our ability to nurture and sustain ourselves is remarkable by its reach and precision (chameleon tongue).

4. Who do I admire greatly:

There are so many, but someone who encapsulates so much of what is meaningful to me is Arianna Huffington founder of the Huffington Post. She is self driven and hugely successful – touching many through her media, actions and talks. She is a living example of someone 'finding themselves' and evolving over time from a staunch Republican, to a Democrat and an advocate for sustainable living and alternative energies. She is balanced and grounded and knows how to prioritize and inspire. Weaved through her life is a spiritual essence which she says (and I believe) is essential for a happy and fulfilled life of thriving.

5. What would you like people to take home as a life lesson:

Look inwards – find what really moves you - go with what makes your heart sing or your heart break, this will give you the energy you need to break boundaries and follow your true purpose. It is not always about the money.

Yes, we need that 'day job' – but balance this with a passion on the side, if it can't be the main meal. Constantly re-calibrate yourself – is your GPS setting on the right track – and adjust accordingly. Don't get stuck in a job you hate – this is soul destroying. I switched out of Investment Banking after 4 years – it was making me into a person I didn't like – but it takes courage to do this. So be brave leaders of SELF.

Dar Es Salaam Tanzanites (130531)

We are in a most exciting period for women, where our influence and energy can seed new ways of doing things – business, politics, community. Let's all embrace this – we have woken up, now let us stand up!

She believed she could, so she did. Story #3

Mrs. Parul Chhaya
CEO,
TMJ Hospital Dar es Salaam
Tanzania

I was of a certain childhood generation where gender inequality in education and career was an accepted visible norm. Preference was given to the male child for furthering the education by parents. The prevalent concept was sons go to school and the daughters do the household chores. My mother was a victim of this prevalent system and hence she insisted that I pursue my education to my maximum ability.

After marriage, we had our share of struggles, but because we stood by each other and we made it through. The life was full of joy. We had the best understanding and trust with which the foundation of our marriage started. During this time, our angels were born. What a change in life. In our culture, we say that “daughters bring good luck for the father” and it turned out to be very true.

My biggest supporters have always been my husband and our two little angels. I was determined to show what a woman can do. Time was not a barrier. My daughters used to come with me at night to my office so that I could do my work and they used to do their homework and went to sleep in my office. I started burning midnight candles. I was ambitious, confident and conscientious. My two little angels are now grown up. Eldest is a Doctor, married and settled in life. We are also blessed to have our joy, our first Grandchild. The younger one is an Aerospace Engineer pursuing her PhD in the USA.

My Dad always told me, 'nothing ventured, nothing gained'. He would remind me that playing it safe, and waiting for things to come was never a good recipe for success. He believed that you had to be willing to take risks and believe in yourself in order to see what you were truly capable of. 'Women must not accept; she must challenge. My dear daughter, I want you to remove two words from your dictionary'. he said.

1. 'Impossible' - No work should be impossible for my daughter, set your goal, and grab it.
2. 'Tired'- My daughter should never be tired. I want you to be full of energy all the time.

If you know who you are intrinsically and the impact you want to make, your path becomes clear and you can start making a difference on the business and the communities we serve.

There were three main progression strategies that helped me thrive in the workplace.

1. The first one is ACTIVATION, which is all about putting yourself on the map - self-promotion by raising your hand and letting people know what you're interested in doing.
2. The second strategy is INFLUENCE. It is a skill to be able to build relationships and create partnerships where you're asking people to do something but you don't have any authority over them.
3. The last strategy is MOTIVATION - knowing how to talk to people in your team in a way that brings them together and makes them feel valued.

Dar Es Salaam Tanzanites (130531)

My tip for success is hard work and dedication above all else, focus on the end goal and don't cut corners or make excuses'. Don't give up. Better days are coming. Storms don't last, but strong people do. Accept Success and Failure as Part of Life's Journey. Success will follow you.

The International Women's Day 2019 campaign theme of #BalanceforBetter is a call-to-action for driving gender balance across the world. Balance drives a better working world. Let's all help create a Balance for Better.

She believed she could, so she did. Story #4

I am Sika Falconer, Retired British Army Officer, Project Manager and Mom.

Like most of you, I don't think of myself as an inspiration. Not on a daily basis anyway. Like most of you, my life has been filled with the minutiae of family, friendship, careers and supporting various charitable initiatives. A lot of it has been about making choices that move away from the norm.

Twenty years ago, I was one of a handful of women choosing to study Mathematics at University, Fifteen years ago, I was enrolling at the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst in the UK and Three years ago, I walked away from my career to move to Tanzania and be a stay-at-home mom. My life choices have not always been the norm for someone of my background, ethnicity, and on the face of it, feminist principles.

Each choice has been accompanied by fear of failure and fear of the unknown but my strategy has been to identify what I fear about my choice and then to do it anyway! This has led me to pit myself against some extreme physical and mental situations. Not all of my choices have led to success but all have led to a deeply soul-satisfying learning experience.

Women's Day is a time for us all to reflect on those learning experiences, to understand that you don't have to be the brightest student academically or the fittest person physically in order to achieve your dreams. Follow your curiosity and be guided by finding the answer to the question, "What do I want"? It's ok to want to be a scientist, soldier, a charity founder or a stay-at-home mom as long as that is your path to personal satisfaction. BALANCE FOR BETTER.

She believed she could, so she did. Story #5

I am Claudia Ortega I was born in Lima- Peru; I've been living in Tanzania for the past 16 years.

I got a chance to model from a very young age in Peru, it gave me a chance to represent my country in various International Beauty Pageants. To prepare myself well for the pageants, I had to also learn about business management, business etiquette and international protocol. Later in life, I also studied acting, public speaking and TV Production, this gave me the chance to work as an actresses in theaters, soap operas and TV shows.

I then moved to the USA. I was acting and performing stage shows in Las Vegas, at the Caesar's Palace. This gave me a chance to learn about costume designing.

I visited Tanzania for a holiday and fell in love with the nature and this beautiful country! I met my late husband here too and the rest is history.

I've always had a passion for fitness. Zumba is inspired by Latin American Music that gives you a full body cardio workout. Now, as a Professional Zumba Instructor, I love to share my passion for music and fitness via this mode as it also helps one to forget about their problems as your focus is on the music and the moves. You don't even realize that you are exercising!

I have also carved a small niche in the entertainment industry here in Tanzania with my company, The Claudia Productions. We organize all types of corporate and private functions.

So that's the Multifaceted Me!

Being alone is very challenging for me. As a widow and a mother to a young girl, multi-tasking things is not easy. Tanzania is a home away from home for us now and I am determined that, no matter how hard it gets, I will always try to work to the best of my ability.

We should never stop learning. My experiences have made me the person I am today. Each experience is a life lesson. We must always thrive to be a better version of oneself with every new day.

I would definitely say confidence defines me best, I believe that when you know you're doing the right thing and believe in yourself, anything is possible. Your confidence and faith will lead you to see the positive side of all the situations.

My role model is definitely my mom, she is the root of the person I am. Consistent, confident, disciplined, focused on my goals and I am grateful to GOD for always being there.

This Women's Day I would like to emphasize on the fact that No gender is superior. We are all important and each one plays a key part. We must learn to strike a balance. We are strong, brave and we can do anything, there is absolutely no need to compare! Each being should be appreciated for who they are.

Dar Es Salaam Tanzanites (130531)

With the years I've lived and all the obstacles I have overcome, I've learnt that we don't know how long we are staying on earth with our family, our friends and the ones we love. Therefore, we must always do and be our best, treat each day as though it's our last.

Fundraising Event / Campaign

Dar Es Salaam Tanzanites (130531)

She believed she could, so she did. Story #6

My name is Tarvinder Kaur Puri and I am a HR Professional.

What defines me best

When I look back at the success and accomplishments of the last 43 years I take a huge amount of pride in all I have accomplished and what the future possibilities could be. I wake up every morning knowing I have more to learn. I am a real People Person and a Storyteller. I have made a successful career out of bringing the best out in people.

I was very fortunate in life that through experiences and chance encounters, I was able to find a career and a path which I both enjoyed and excelled at. As a Director of Human Resources for the past 20 years in the UK, I have advised numerous organisations across a variety of industries and helped them to grow their organisational capabilities. My new venture in Tanzania allows me to share my skills in helping students and adults alike so they can understand their own preferences. They are more self aware when it comes to making decision about careers, how they communicate and operate at their best.

As a working mum, wife, daughter and daughter in law, we wear many hats and (mostly) I enjoy the challenge that balancing it all brings. My work and my family define who I am and they give me my identity and purpose for being.

What is the best representation of Women's Day:

I am surrounded by amazing friends and female family role models, who have all taken a different career paths to me and teach me each day a different life lesson through their own experiences. They share and retell their stories as powerful independent thinkers who have shaped and molded their own destiny. For me my Mum is the best representation of Women's Day. She is a strong willed, passionate and warm lady and she gives the best 'Punjabi Jappi's (hugs) in the world. Tragically her own mum died from TB before she was 2 years old so she grew up without a Mum. I cannot even imagine how incredibly difficult it must have been for her without many photographs to keep her visual memory alive. Now I have children of my own I feel her pain even deeper than I could have imagined when I watch my children fall asleep at night.

What would I like people to take home as a life lesson:

Be proud, be humble and be authentic to who you are.

It is my belief that women often downplay their achievements in life. We flippantly put it down to good luck, good timing and often forget the hard work and perseverance it took to get there. My advice would be to surround yourself with 'cheerleaders'. These people are your champions, your supporters, your sisters who will encourage you when your day is not turning out quite as you had planned. Accept compliments when given even when it feels uncomfortable. The most important lesson for me is be true to who you are.

She believed she could, so she did. Story #7

Cheherazade Cheikh.

Founder and Co-Owner of Inaya Zanzibar.

What defines me best

I am a manufacturer, humanist, liberal, animal lover and a wannabe bird watcher. I would also say: my rebellious nature, my commitment to projects and causes I believe in and possibly the fact that I can out talk anyone..... And I am a feminist.

My partner and I started the Inaya Zanzibar project in 2011. By 2013, our factory was up and running. We draw our inspiration from Africa's rich nature and diverse cultures when formulating our beauty products.

We proudly have an all-women production and sales team. We strive on providing them with an inspiring and fulfilling work environment. The Inaya team makes our unique products with the utmost care in our workshop in Zanzibar. Our products are handmade, hand-blended, hand-poured and hand-packed in small batches to ensure optimum freshness and meticulous quality standards. We are committed to produce natural, authentic and exclusive skin & body care.

What challenges me most

Very generally speaking I would say intolerance and negativity. Otherwise, I don't see challenges as insurmountable barriers. Doing business in Tanzania (and in Africa in general) can be very challenging, especially in the manufacturing sector. However, I believe there is a solution for every problem.

What is the best representation of Women's Day for me

It is a reminder of the struggle, fight and hard work we need to collectively partake until every day is women's day. There is a long way to go to achieve equality for all regardless of gender, social status, education, ethnicity or religion. We will get there. In the meantime, we need to support and empower women individually and collectively whenever we can.

My role model

I don't have just one role model. There so many inspirational women out there from Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie to Malala Yousafzai, Serena Williams, Gloria Steinem, Maya Angelou, Simone Veil, Michelle Obama, Gisèle Halimi, Obiageli Ezekwesili, Bi Kidude and many more. This includes some friends and family members too like my mother and both my African and Asian Grand- Mothers.

What would I like people to take home as a life lesson.

Dar Es Salaam Tanzanites (130531)

Two come to my mind.

1) Failure is not an end. It's an opportunity to learn. Failure should not stop successful women from picking themselves back up and going on with life. You cannot succeed if you never try. Been there, done that! My first business failure allowed me to, today, have a successful business in a field that I love.

2) Get involved. Whether through an association, a local chamber of commerce, collectives, etc. on social issues or business matters, let your voice be heard. I am a board member, representing the industrial sector, of the Zanzibar Chamber of Commerce. I am also one of the founding members of the Manufacturers Council of Zanzibar (MCZ) and the Association of Women Entrepreneurs of Zanzibar (AWEZ). Community work through advocacy is something that has kept me grounded and has been very fulfilling. Although time consuming, demanding and often frustrating, it is also rewarding when policies or regulations are finally changed or amended to benefit the manufacturing sector or the local consumers. To paraphrase Gandhi, “we need to be the change we want to see in the world”.

She believed she could, so she did. Story #8, the Grand Finale IWD2019.

Prioritizing her own health in majority of the cases is the last thing on the list for a woman who juggles multiple things at a go.

"My child, you have cancer and we will have to do a mastectomy so you can live", said the Doctor compassionately. There I was lying and trying to fathom each word he was saying but at the back of my mind, a voice was screaming, "Cancer?Me? ..it's not possible".

I have looked after myself fairly well and have hardly fallen sick. Yes, I am guilty of not going for regular checkups after the age of 35. When it comes to listening to doctors, we tend to approach it by saying "It can't happen to me", but It did.

My name is Tasneem Yusufali and I am battling cancer. That is my new title, A warrior. Breast Cancer is now very common and if faced head-on, It can be eliminated. It's been about 3 months, since I was first diagnosed.

With a smile on my face and a tear in my eye, I move on. I smile because my lifeline- my family and friends give me lots of strength and courage to face these days. My mother and 2 aunts comfort me and give me super assurance. A tear of gratitude, that I've been detected at an early stage. The physical discomforts and pain... well, they exist, but if you say to yourself that this too shall pass, it does. Take one day at a time like the hurdles in a race and you will surpass. I long to return home to my 2 boys, who cheer me up daily, to my dear family and to my soul sisters the Tanzanites Lions.

As an active Lion Member, one service activity that has truly touched my heart is the childhood cancer service we do regularly. I couldn't really comprehend how the loved ones of these kids or the child himself/herself could be so calm and patient. It is only now that I truly understand their daily battle that actually changes the mindset. You learn to see things differently, therefore it is very important to stay positive and focus on your higher purpose.

This Women's Day, I would like to share my thoughts with my soul sisters, to tell them that when we speak our hearts, we gain. We gain the courage to go ahead, to move through uncharted territories with our heads high. We are assured that we are not alone. Look after yourself, educate yourself and don't be shy to share any irregularities you sense physically or mentally. I encourage everyone to be proactive, early detection is of life saving importance.

The Almighty has blessed us women with an immense power of endurance. In our losses too we profit. That's our privilege.

Journeys are more interesting than the destinations. Sharing our experiences and stories links us all into a beautiful association. No matter how diverse we are, we can still relate & we can still bond.

I choose to hold my bald head high and not be ashamed to say, "Yes, I am battling cancer and I will survive! Glory be to God. InshaAllah!

A Daughter, a Wife, a Mother, a Friend, a French Teacher, a Homemaker, a Humanitarian and now A Warrior.

I am blessed with all the adversities and challenges that have made me who I am today, "A Stronger Soul".

Dar Es Salaam Tanzanites (130531)

The Lions Club of DSM Tanzanites carried out their monthly General & Board Meeting this afternoon- 23rd of March 2019.

Our Member Lion Sapna, (a Professional Abacus Teacher, running her own school The Rising Star that focuses only on Math Skills for children) conducted a Brain Gym Session for our members. This exercise is a very beneficial tool that aids in improving concentration, memory and internal connection of the right and left brain. This activity is part of the "giving back" initiative to our members.
