As an unreachable 7-year-old blind and deaf child, Helen was connected to the world by her teacher, Anne Sullivan. Helen earned a Bachelor of Arts degree and became an author, political activist, and lecturer.

In 1925, Helen convinced Lions Clubs International to become "Knights of the Blind".

Photo courtesy of Helen Keller Foundation: In 1894, 14-year-old Helen, her hair gloriously long, reaches out to touch-read the lips of 27-year-old Annie Sullivan, the "miracle worker" who unlocked the world of language from Helen's silent darkness. Helen Keller biographer Dorothy Hermann refers to Annie as Helen's "other self."
