Happy May Day!

What a month April has been. I attended all four district conventions. Congratulations to all who were recognized at each convention. Each district is unique in their own rights. I would like to thank Lion Janice Davis again publicly for her and her team for putting together a fantastic District 6 C convention. Lion Bruce Beck did an awesome job challenging us as we move forward serving our communities. Thanks to the 90 some who attended the convention and took time out of their schedules to participate.

I attended 6SE convention in Pueblo on April 9th. They held theirs at the El Pueblo History Museum which was just a lovely place to visit. There was a large meeting room that DG Betsy Denney held the convention in. They had a sandwich bar set up for lunch and a catered Mexican dinner for the evening meal. International Director Ernesto "TJ" Tijerina from Texas was their guest speaker. Found out that we have mutual friends in Texas. It was a good time working on the service project they had and just spending time with fellow Lions from 6SE.

The 6 NE district convention was held on April 23 in Loveland at the Best Western Plus Hotel. Their guest speak was PID Howard Hudson from California. Lion Howard and I have several mutual good friends in California. I enjoyed my time with DG Gary Sampson and 1st VDG Scott Hayward, along with the Lions of 6NE.

At the time of this writing, I hadn't attended the 6West District convention. I will be driving up on Saturday morning and staying overnight. I will report on my trip in next month newsletter.

Respect

I heard a distressing comment from a fellow Lion the other day. They were not going to attend our State Convention as they felt disrespected by several members of the hosting club. Wow, to have such a strong feeling like that and miss an important Lions event. That is truly sad and got me to thinking.

I'm not saying we should put aside all our differences, hold hands, and sing Kumbaya. I'm not even saying we should like one another. It would be nice, but let's be honest...that's never going to happen in my lifetime. Some of the differences are really important to who we are and deserve to be focused on and discussed. It's the differences that will help us as a society learn and, one day, move forward. Today is not that day.

Asking people to love one another is impossible until people learn to respect one another. So that's what my message is today. You don't have to love thy neighbor. Heck, you don't even have to like them. Just try a little respect. They are a human being who have hopes and dreams. They love someone and someone loves them. They are someone's child. They may be someone's sibling or parent. They have friends. There are things that make them laugh and things that make them cry. They will bleed. They will die.

They are a living, breathing human being. The color of their skin, the person that they love, the higher power they believe in – or don't believe in the fact that they are a living, breathing human being. Just like you, just like me, and the person down the street. We are all living, breathing human beings. Maybe I'm just naive, but shouldn't that be the most important part? If you can't find a way to respect someone for any other reason, can't you at least respect the fact that they are a human being? They are here trying to live the best they can, and when they're gone someone will cry for them.

I know that even asking us to be nice to one another at this point is probably a lost cause. So, can we start with respect? For one day, don't just automatically go on the attack or on the defensive. Respect the people around you. You don't have to get carried away, just say excuse me when you walk in front of someone. Hold a door open. Say thank you and you're welcome. Acknowledge that the people around you, even the people who you say you hate, are PEOPLE. Human beings. Living, breathing, feeling beings just like you and me.

For one day try to respect them. Then tomorrow, try doing it for another day. The day after that...and the day after that...and the day after that...Maybe one day we'll find that we really do respect the people we're different from. Maybe on that day we can move on and find a way to get along.

For those of you who feel disrespected, although difficult, try and shrug it off. There is a rainbow after a storm. Maybe, you can try and respect those disrespecting you. Life is too short to hold grudges. Remember, we don't know what goes on behind closed doors.

Wishing you all a productive May as we all strive to be the best Lions we can be.

God bless,
Yours in Lionism

May 2022

Dear Fellow Lions.

At the last Denver Lion's luncheon, we were shaken by the personal stories presented by two Ukrainians, Lena Karabushin and Alexi Drozd. We are sharing Alexi's email here that includes links to sources where you can learn more.

Thank you all -
Lion President Loree Vanderhye

From Ukrainians of Colorado and me personally, Alexi Drozd, thank you so much from the bottom of our hearts. Thank you for not being indifferent to our people's suffering, to this crime against humanity. People like you - who don't stay on the sidelines are the type of people that we need to help with this humanitarian crisis and stop the pointless murder of innocent lives. It was an honor to speak with a group of people who care so much. Thank you.

I wanted to summarise in the email some of the resources that I mentioned during our meeting. As a group effort, we are part of a registered non-profit - Ukrainians of Colorado. Our current mission is to raise awareness, and funds, and make a meaningful difference. We are 100% volunteer-based with no overhead, all of the items we offer for donations are made by other volunteers that donate their time, energy, and oftentimes materials. Currently, all the funds we raise go to medicine, bulletproof vests, and supporting three different orphanages in Ukraine. We take special care to make sure that the money gets to where it is intended to go and is used only for humanitarian help. Your support and donations are greatly appreciated and will help hundreds and thousands of people in need. Some of them are going to be orphans, wounded, and hungry. Thank you.

This is our home page. We have some resources and information there:
