Search sources: «Call pickup», «NEWS, A.Y - newspapers, A.A - books, a. a. - scholar», «Pick-UPA» or by pressing a special sequence of buttons on the phone. In places where call collection is used, telephone appliances can be divided into areas. Based on this agreement, using call collection only one call in the same area will be collected. The pick-up call can be addressed. Direct call collection is used to collect a call that is playing at a specific extension number; This function is accessed via a sequence of buttons other than normal collection. A telephone set can receive a single call at a time. If there are more calls arriving at the same time, the call pickup will collect the call that rang first, unless the pick-up is direct. Call collection uses If a colleague's phone is ringing, you can answer the call by taking your own set and then using the call collection function, instead of walking to the colleague desk. Call collection is often used in working group settings, such as offices that respond to customer requests. In these settings, the service can be called «Group call detection» and usually no matter who receives a call. Call collection is also useful in large offices or periods of stagnation when the staff is lower than that of telephone appliances. When a member of the group receives a call and is unable to respond, any other member of the group can answer the phone using the PickUp softkey. There are three types of call collection: • Call withdrawal: It allows users to collect incoming calls on any phone within their group. When users press the PickUp button, CUCM automatically composes the appropriate call-pickup number associated with their DN. Since the other phone is in the same collection group, the incoming call is redirected to the phone that clicked on the PickUp softkey. • Group call detection: It allows users to receive incoming calls for DN on different collection groups. Users press the GPickup keyboard and make up the appropriate group number for the target call-pickup group. • Other group call collection: It allows users to collect incoming calls in a group associated with their group. This type of call collection is sometimes referred to as a collection chain, and is treated in the following subtheme. Call-pick-up example Telephone A and Telephone B in Figure 16-5 are assigned to call-pick-up A (4685). If the A phone is ringing, the B phone can go out-hook, press the PickUp button, and then press the Answer button. The call is diverted to Phone B. Pickup Group Example Telephone C in Figure 16-5 belongs to the call-pickup B group with the number 4688. Telephone A and Telephone B are in A call pick-up (4685). When Phone C is ringing, Phone A can go off-hook, press the More softkey, the GPickup softkey, enter the group B call number (4688), and then press the Answer softkey. The call is redirected to phone A. Other Call Collection Group (OPickup) allows users to collect incoming calls using call collection even if the call is destined to a phone in another call collection group. Call collection groups are associated with other call collection groups. CUCM automatically searches for incoming In groups associated to make the call connection when the user activates this feature from a Cisco IP phone. Use the OPICKUP function key for this type of call pickup. Figure 16-5 Call pickup and group call pickup Figure 16-5 Call pickup and group call pickup When there is more than one associated group, the priority of answering calls for the associated group goes from the first associated group to the last associated group. For example, groups A, B and C associated with Group X, and the priority of responding to calls goes to Group A, then B, and then C. Usually, within the same group, the longest warning call (longest ring time) is taken first if there are multiple incoming calls in that group. Call pickup, group call pickup, and other group call pickup can be automated by enabling the Enabled service parameter auto pickup. When this parameter is enabled, CUCM automatically connects users to the incoming call in their pickup group, another pickup group, or a pickup group associated with their group after users press the appropriate software button on their phone. This action requires only one button. Automatic Call Pickup Connects the user to an incoming call. When the user presses a pickup function button on the phone, the cucm locates the incoming call and completes the call connection. If automation is not enabled, the user must press the takeup and answer softkey to make the call connection. To configure call pickup, a call pickup number must first be configured and then associated with the DN. Call pickup is configured by browsing to call the routing> Call Pickup Group in the CUCM administration. Enter a unique pickup group name and a unique pickup group number. Access to call pickup groups can be restricted by assigning a partition to the number of the call-pickup group. When this configuration is used, only phones that have a caller search space (CSS) that include the partition with the call-pickup group number can participate in that call-pickup group. Make sure that the combination of partition and group number is unique throughout the system. Figure 16-6 shows the call pickup configuration. The other group call pickup function uses this list. Groups are searched sequentially, starting with the first group in the list. After the call pickup group is added in CUCM, the group is assigned to the desired line from the directory number configuration window. Withdrawal of DN DN calls It is shown in Figure 16-7. (Can I also use it for mobile phones?) 2) It's not taking my call. 3) It is not collecting my call. 4) It is not accepting my call. Please suggest better alternatives, if present. 06-Apr-2009, a, 14:31 # 2 1) is not collecting the phone. (Can I also use it for mobile phones?) - It's not updated. There is no answer / not responded / is not inside. Etc. (others will give you more examples) 2) is not taking my call. Yes, if it is falling / refusing to talk to you. 3) It is not collecting my call. The situation you could say this is so complicated and rare ...4) does not accept my call. Another way of saying that someone doesn't want to talk to you, period; Or because it is a reverse call and declines to endure the cost of the call. 06-Apr-2009, a, 15:18 # 3 Originally published by demonful99 Please suggest better alternatives, if present. He does not respond. It's not an answer. It's not there. His waiting call is not collecting. It's not collecting, up>
