Lover Goes to His In-laws) is a 1996 Indian Hindi-language romantic comedy film starring Govinda, Tabu, Karisma Kapoor, Kader Khan, and Satish Kaushik. It was directed by David Dhawan. It is a remake of the Telugu film Allari Mogudu (1992). Saajan Chale Sasural was a commercial success and was listed second among the top five "super-hits" of 1996 by the Indian Express.[2] Plot Shyamsunder (Govinda) is a naive villager who has a great interest in music. He travels to the city, making friends with Muthuswami (Satish Kaushik), a South Indian tabla player. The president of the TIPS cassette company, Khurana (Kader Khan), is impressed with his musical abilities and promotes him to a high position. As he goes back to repay his debts in the village, he receives tragic news of the death of his wife Pooja (Karisma Kapoor), who has died in a flood. He then marries Khurana's daughter Divya (Tabu). When Khurana has a heart attack, Shyamsunder finds his "presumed dead" wife Pooja in the hospital. He then has to fool his two wives, even if it includes leading a double life to make sure Pooja and Divya don't discover he has married both of them. Cast Govinda as Shyamsundar Gupta Tabu as Divya Khurana Karishma Kapoor as Pooja Daschandani Kader Khan as Dharendra Khurana Shakti Kapoor as Singer / Musician Satish Kaushik as Muranchand "Mutthu" Swami Satish Shah as Rampyare Rastogi / Company manager Mukesh Rishi as Nana Anjana Mumtaz as Hemalata Gupta Himani Shivpuri as Fake
