Something went wrong. Wait a moment and try again. Are you wondering how to dress for a presentation? As a former student who just recently finished business school I've had my fair share of presentations. Throughout the years, I've been complimented on my style when it comes to presentation day as I've figured out some tricks to really elevate my look. What to Wear for a Presentation for Guys For presentations, dressing business casual is the most appropriate way to dress. This can mean anything from a nice suit to a pair of dark jeans and a collared shirt. By dressing in business casual attire you'll look professional, but not like you're going to attend a wedding. Finding that sweet spot where you're not under or over dressed is really important. In this post, I will be sharing men's presentation outfit ideas as well some important tips on how your clothing can you feel more comfortable and confident during your presentation. You'll also find out what to avoid so you look your best. Men's Presentation Outfit Ideas Tops, Shirts and Sweaters The basics: When going for a business casual look, you have a couple great choices. A polo shirt is a casual top for a presentation and it will be comfortable. I would recommend choosing a simple color like white or navy blue depending on the pants you plan on wearing. This will be a simple shirt but often simple looks the best. A white dress shirt with a distinct pattern is a great choice when dressing business casual. If you get a nice fitting dress shirt it will make you look very sharp. Many people will stick to wearing polo shirts when presenting so wearing a dress shirt will make it look as if you put more effort into your outfit. Elevate your look: If you want to elevate your look you can add a sports jacket or blazer to your outfit. Wearing a blazer will make you look more formal and put together. If that's the look you are going for, it's the perfect item to add to your outfit. Keep it mind you may get hot during a presentation wearing a sports coat, so choose your fabric wisely. Pants Chinos are the perfect presentation pants. I recommend either navy blue or khaki as they will go with almost any shirt color you choose. A white dress shirt and navy blue chinos will make a great business casual outfit. If you prefer to wear dress pants those work well too. Dress pants will give a more formal look, however do be careful not to look overdressed if you're in a college or casual workplace setting. If you don't have any of the pants I mentioned, black jeans will do in a pinch. If that's all you got, just make it work! It's not always about having the nicest clothes but it's how you wear them. Shoes Black dress shoes are perfect for presentations. If you want to dress business casual, classic black dress shoes are a wardrobe staple and must have. They always look good and are so versatile that you can wear them anywhere. Brown dress shoes are also a great shoe to wear for presentations. I would recommend wearing these with the blue chinos as blue and brown go really well together when it comes to clothing. If you like loafers they will give you a more stylish look. Many people will present in classic dress shoes. However, if you want to look good as well as stand out, a nice pair of loafers with the right pants will look great. Clothing Accessories A watch it an important accessory to wear with your presentation outfit. A smart watch or a watch with a leather strap will look great for the business casual look and it will add to your outfit. A gold or silver watch it's perfectly fine, however don't wear something that's overly flashy. Wearing a belt is a must. Make sure you the belt is the same colour as your shoes. It will make your look a lot sharper than having a different shoe colour than your belt. What to Avoid Wearing For Presentations Flashy Colours When presenting it's a good idea to avoid wearing flashy colours. Wearing bright pink, green, yellow or tie-dye should absolutely be avoided, as you don't want to distract from your message and presentation. Save the fun and more outlandish outfits for other occasions and look professional for presentations. Additionally, if you tend to sweat, avoid grey and other colours that will make it obvious that you are sweating. Baggy Clothing Avoid baggy clothing! Clothing should fit well and never be too tight or too baggy. Ripped Clothing Ripped clothing looks great when you're going to a party, but not so much for a presentation. Remember, you want to dress business casual which requires a clean and sharp outfit. Dirty Clothes Always avoid wearing dirty clothes. If your shirt is dirty it will be very noticeable when presenting so do your best to keep your nicer clothing clean and ready to wear in your closet. If you happen to get a small stain on your shirt, using a stain removal stick like Tide to Go is a good temporary solution. Flashy Jewelry When presenting there's nothing wrong with some wearing some nice accessories. However, you'll want to avoid wearing super flashy jewelry. A shiny gold watch, or huge chain or diamond necklace could be distracting when you present. Wearing some simple jewelry is best for presentations. Can I Wear Sneakers for a Presentation? No, sneakers are way too casual for presentations. Instead, you can wear dress shoes or loafers, which are the appropriate style and look you want. Do I Need to Wear a Tie For a Presentation? If you're making a presentation at work where suits are often worn, like in finance, then you may want to wear a tie. However, the current style is wearing a suit and dress shirt and leaving the top button open, without a tie. Always make sure you know what your audience and peers expect. These days, in most settings you probably can skip a tie. Should I Wear a Shirt Tucked or Untucked for a Presentation? When it comes to dressing for a presentation, you can decide on tucking your shirt in based on what you are wearing and your personal style. If you are wearing a dress shirt, tucking it in will look more professional. If you are wearing a collared t-shirt you can wear it untucked. At the end of the day, wear your shirt the way you think you look your best and feel comfortable. Tips: Comfort Being comfortable in the clothes that you are wearing is really important. If you show up to the presentation and your shirt collar is irritating you, it will bother you while presenting. It's important to try on your outfit in advance and make sure that you are comfortable. When choosing shoes, make sure they are comfortable and not too tight. Often times, dress shoes or loafers can give you blisters, especially if it's the first time that you are wearing them. If you have to wear the shoes all day, you won't regret investing in good quality shoes that are comfortable. Fit When shopping for clothes be patient and choose clothes that fit your body well. If you choose something just because it's business casual or it looks good on the mannequin, it doesn't mean that it will look good on you. The fit of your clothing will go hand and hand with how confident you feel in your outfit. Cologne Wearing cologne is a small detail that can greatly improve your appearance. Smelling good will enhance your look and having a nice scent will make it seem as if you put more thought into your outfit. Make sure to not over do it on the cologne. Wearing too much cologne can be a distraction from the presentation which is something you seriously want to avoid. Confidence Wearing an outfit that fits you nicely, is comfortable and that you know makes you look good will make you instantly more confident. When it comes to presenting, confidence is key and it all starts with the clothes you are wearing. It's important to be confident during your presentation as it will make your presentation go a lot smoother. Final Thoughts In this article we've gone over what clothing to wear for a presentation, as well as tips to make you look and feel confident. Good luck on your presentation! Have questions or presentation outfit suggestions? Please let me know in the comments below. There are 30 million PowerPoint presentations created every day. That's a lot of presentations!When you are giving a presentation, it can take a lot of time and energy to get it just right. Choosing a presentation outfit to highlight your confidence and professionalism is key.Read on to learn how to dress for a presentation including some faux-pas to avoid.Choose ComfortGiving a presentation in front of a crowd is nerve-wracking enough. You don't need to add itchy, tight or uncomfortable clothing to the mix.Your presentation outfit should look professional but be breathable, light and comfortable. Avoid those heels that hurt your toes or could cause you to stumble, especially if you need to walk up steps on to a podium.Ideally, you want to choose a professional dress or suit that makes you feel confident. Generally fitted pieces give a more streamlines business professional look.Avoid baggy, ill-fitting tops or pants. You will look disheveled and sloppy - the last thing you want to come across as!Stay away from any items that restrict your movement, or make you feel self-conscious.You'll likely walk around and use your hands while giving your presentation. So, make sure your outfit moves with you. Go ahead and try your chosen outfit on at home and pretend to do your presentation to see how it moves.Remember, people are taking time out of their day to hear your presentation. Show them you value their time by dressing the part.Think about the audience you'll be speaking for in order to get the right style.For a formal presentation, a fitted black or navy suit and comfortable heels are sure to look good.If the presentation is at a less conventional group such as a start-up or a tech conference, you don't want to wear a suit and look old-fashioned. Here a colored pencil skirt or a skinny-legged pant with a silk blouse or a long-sleeved dress would work well.The best thing you can do is check with the event organizer ahead of time to get a feel for the dress code. And pack a blazer that you can throw on or take off if necessary at the last minute.Also, make sure you find out if you will be speaking on a stage. Be wary of wearing a skirt if you'll be on stage. There's nothing professional about showing your front-row audience members your underwear. You should always wash and wear your presentation outfit well before the event. Standing in front of hundreds of people is no time to find out that the tag on the back of a top is itchy or that the blouse is sheer in bright lights.Choose fabrics that wear well, such as jersey, lycell, spandex and knits. You want to know that your outfit won't be a wrinkled mess after sitting for half an hour.So, while you don't want to bring your faded and tired outfits when giving a presentation, you do want to make sure you've tested out your choice before the big day.Keep It SimpleWhile flashy jewelry can certainly be fun and attract attention, it can be distracting during a presentation. You don't want your jewellery to be reflecting light back in to the audience, nor have the microphone pick up sound every time your bracelet or necklace moves.Choose simple jewellery that won't make noise or glare under stage lights.Wear Something That Holds a Lavalier MicrophoneIf you are giving a presentation to a big group, or are part of a panel, chances are you'll have to wear a lavalier microphone (clip-on microphone).Keep that in mind when you plan your presentation outfit. Many lavalier microphones use a transmitter that either clips on a belt or can sit in a pocket. Many dresses do not have a place to keep the transmitter.Generally, a shirt and pants are a better fit and ideally, you would place the lavalier on a button-down shirt directly above the second button.Also, pinning the clip-on mic to a lapel isn't the best placement. When you move your head, the volume will change.If in doubt, ask the event organizer what type of clip will be used for your presentation.Remove the Name TagWhen you arrived at the conference, you likely got a sticker pinned to your chest. Or maybe you got a laminated badge on a lanyard or on a safety clip.Before giving a presentation, take off any and all tags. They can be distracting (especially if the tag is on crooked) and can cause a glare due to stage lights.Feel free to pop it back on when you're done your talk. If you think you might forget to take off the tag, add it as a point on your presentation notes or on your pre-presentation checklist. You might be filmed live for those participating via video conference. Or footage may be used for a wide variety of purposes including YouTube and other social media sharing.Dressing professional on-camera is slightly different than if you aren't being filmed. You should avoid patterns that could appear distorted on camera (like checkered print).You'll also want to avoid black, white and red which can make you fade into the background or look jarring on film. Pastels or jewel tones are a safe choice for an on-camera appearance.Avoid any frosted or glittery makeup if you'll be filmed. Matte colors and finishes work best. And make sure your hair is styled to be out of your eyes.Always look in the mirror before going on stage. You don't want to find out that you had a strand of hair sticking straight up.Thanks for reading! We hope this guide on choosing a professional outfit when giving a presentation helps you feel confident and prepared as you head onto the stage.Take the stress and guesswork out of shopping with our subscription box plans.
